Context

Historical Note
Founded in 1885 as a breakaway from Henry M. Hyndman's Social Democratic Federation; leading person was William Morris; he and the anarchist faction in 1887 won a majority decision that pledged the League to antiparlimentarianism; the Marxists and moderate socialists then resigned; in 1889 the anarchists won a majority on the Executive Council; the League’s organ Commonweal became an exclusively anarchist journal; Morris broke with the League in 1890 and founded the Hammersmith Socialist Society 1890-1896; the League itself was absorbed into Peter Kropotkin’s Freedom group in 1895.

Acquisition
Originally part of the Nettlau collection. The IISH acquired this collection in 1935 with financial support of the Centrale Arbeiders-Verzekerings- en Deposito-Bank (the Centrale). The collection was mentioned in the Annual Report of 1948 (p.33). The contract was signed 1935.

Content and Structure

Content
Correspondence, including two letters from Friedrich Engels 1885-1886; documents on the formation of the League, including constitution and rules; on annual conferences 1885-1890, including annual conference reports; minutes of General Meetings of London members; records of Council meetings, including agenda, minutes and notes of meetings, lists of members present, reports from officers and committees, resolutions and motions; some records of the Ways and Means Committee 1886; records of the secretariat, including circulars; financial records; manuscripts of articles, poems, manifestos etc., mainly for Commonweal, and documents relating to the production of Commonweal; records of branches, of committees formed by the League and other socialist bodies and copies of printed material issued by the League. NB. Originally part of the Nettlau collection.

Arrangement
The archives of the Socialist League have been a part of the collections of Dr. Max Nettlau. Nettlau has saved these archives from the pulping-machines to which they had already been sent. Because the larger part of the archives had been torn up, it was necessary, previously to inventoring, to sort out pieces and to restore the archives. The archives contain the papers of the Council of the League from 1885 till 1890.
